

CV

Jaime Reis is a senior research fellow at the Instituto de Ciências Sociais of the University of Lisbon. He holds a D. Phil in History from the University of Oxford and has taught at the Universities of Vanderbilt, Leicester, Glasgow, Nova de Lisboa and the European University Institute (Florence). He is a former president of the European Historical Economics Society and since 2008 an editor of the European Review of Economic History. He belongs to the Lisbon Academy of Sciences. He has published on the history of money and banking, labour markets, human capital and agriculture, in Europe and Latin America.